Five Recipes For Ghana's Independence Day, Tropical Ghana Kitchen Global Online Fundraising Drive For Upcoming Cooking Show With An African Twist

Accra, Ghana and New York, NY – Tropical Ghana today announced the official start of a global online fundraising drive to help Tropical Ghana Kitchen, an upcoming cooking show with an African twist, take off.

The fundraising drive is to raise at least $15,000 for the cooking show's TV pilot. Tropical Ghana is using Kickstarter's crowd sourcing platform to raise the money over the next five-week period.

Any contributor who pledges $25 or more receives advance copies of Tropical Ghana's new cookbooks – Tropical Ghana Festive Favorites and Tropical Ghana Inspirations – in eBooks as rewards. As an incentive and also in honor of Ghana's 55th Independence Day celebration, Tropical Ghana is making available five recipes for free on the Kickstarter page to the public.

"It's time for a cooking show with an African twist by an African," said Founder and Creative Director, Charles Cann, who came up with the Tropical Ghana idea in 2006 to help friends cook Ghanaian food. "We need all the support to make this happen. The rewards will help anyone enjoy some of West Africa's best flavors and food."

The fundraiser ends on April 12, 2012 and money is allocated to the cooking show only if the Kickstarter goal of $15,000 is met or exceeded.
